Students will need their own copy of both the verse and prose set texts. The verse text comprises a selection of the poems of Ovid, Propertius and Tibullus, the prose an extract from Cicero's Pro Milone. We will be using editions specifically written to accompany the OCR specification, although the exact one is still to be confirmed. For this reason we anticipate arranging the ordering of these texts within the department in September so students need do nothing for now. The total price for both books is likely to be in the region of £30 at most.

Students will also need grammars and lexicons; for those without, we anticipate being able to make these available to students on long-term loan.
